SPECIALS THIS WEEK

Patrons of our stores realize the tremendous savings on all articles of merchandise purchased from us. They also realize that in addition to the regular items sold by us at a small margin of profit we introduce from time to time "weekly specials." They appreciate the fact that the prices on these articles are cut so low that it pays them to refer to our advertisements with eager interest to see what we have to offer.

This week we have picked just three items as "specials," and we feel beyond any question of a doubt that the values offered here are as great as we have ever placed before you.

HALF-CENT BRIDGE FARE.

A Protest Against the Capital Traction Company's Proposition.

Traction Company's Proposition.

To the Editor of The Star.

A news item has been observed in The Star to the effect that it is the intention of the Capital Traction Company to request a half-cent fare for transportation across the new Key bridge. Primarily, the bridge is intended to be a public asset, an accessory both of utility and convenience. This company seeks a privilege—a track right-of-way over a government-owned structure. The equities of the appeal to the Public Utilities Commission are not clear. The electric road seeks preference, but proposes to exact a forfeiture. The expense of trackage and general construction are to be reckoned, yet when the Capital Traction Company gains permission for special use, it should likewise manifest a willingness to have the public share in the gratuity allowed. To make local users pay a bill which ultimately will result in company profit is not fair in theory nor is it fair in practice. Favor with equities rather than favor with penalization should influence the final decision and is determining the justice or injustice of the asked-for rights. "The public first" has, in this instance, an apt application.
